

In the 1960's, the State found it advantageous to delegate the regulatory function of controlling the monetary base to a public corporation other than the Board of Directors of the Banco de la República.